Marlon Lizama is a Poet/artist who focuses on the cultural aspect of writing and the arts. Coming to the United States at the age of 9, he discovered himself in the sub-cultural called Hip Hop. Joining a group that quickly became world-renowned through competition, theater, workshops, and cultural exchange programs, Havikoro represented a group of young dancers, poets, and artists that put Houston on the world culture map.

Marlon has been to over 40 countries through competitions, performances, poetry shows, and through working with the State Department. He is currently being supported by St. Paul's Methodist through an artist-in-residence program in Houston, TX where he is currently creating a writing program that works with youth from all over the city. Youth groups include Sharpstown High School, incarcerated youth, St. Paul's spiritual youth group, and the Houston Probation Department. The goal of the program is to create writers and published young authors.

"I have worked alongside Marlon for over seven years. His artistic and charismatic approach to telling his life story and teaching our kids has made him an invaluable asset in my classroom. The empowerment that he cultivates within our kids that THEIR stories can be as powerful and worthy listening to is inspiring to me."

Carlos Quintero, CAA
Athletic Coordinator
Sharpstown H.S.

"Marley the Creative is a masterful storyteller, using his diverse voices to evoke the inner emotions and perspectives within both young minds and adults. I can attest that his words have a unique ability to not only be seen and heard but deeply felt, leaving an indelible mark on those who have the privilege of listening."

Emanuel "Outspoken" Bean,
Houston Poet Laureate
